seder

For student success teams, advisors and deans of students

Know who needs help, and why, while there's still time.

Seder prevents student dropout using real-time learning data. It shows each student where they're stuck, and gives the advisor an early signal while there's still time to act.

> "We only find out when the grades come in. By then, it's too late to help."
> Head of a student retention unit, university

✓ Signals come from inside the course, while there's still time before the exam.

> "Everything is scattered across emails, WhatsApp and spreadsheets. I can't see who actually needs me."
> Head of a student-support unit, engineering college

✓ One list of the students worth a check-in, each with a reason and a next step.

> "The students who struggle most are exactly the ones who never come to us."
> Head of a student-support unit, college

✓ A student can tell you they're struggling and ask to meet, right from Seder.

Condensed from our interviews with heads of student-support units.

THE STUDENT

Linear Algebra 2B · 1 gap found

Start with polynomials and eigenvalues.

Practice again · Share a focus map

YOUR TEAM

Weekly summary — Week 6 · illustrative screen

Year 1 student · Linear Algebra 2B — Urgent

Why now

- Attendance — Missed the last two classes
- Activity — Behind on 4 weeks of practice
- Submissions — Last two assignments not submitted

Focus map shared · 3 topics

Next step
Book a meeting on the shared topics. — Open the case

1. Only what matters. You see only the students worth a check-in, so your day is not flooded with alerts.
2. A precise conversation. When a student shares a focus map, you meet on the exact topics still open.

2 pilots have already launched at a university. The next one can be yours.

Let's run a pilot at your institution.

- One course, one semester
- Success measures agreed up front
- Advisor view built with you
- A final report on what worked
